Living Poor Moritz Thomsen

Simply one of the best writers on the planet, Mortitz Thomsen is an American Treasure. Living Poor is the first of his richly told stories of Ecuador, the next is The Farm on the River of Emeralds, and then The Saddest Pleasure: A Journey on Two Rivers. Why these books are not available digitally is a crime, but maybe it has to do with the rights?

Living Poor: A Peace Corps Chronicle: Thomsen, Moritz ...

"Living Poor" is Thomsen's chronicle of how, in middle life, after failing as a farmer, he became a Peace Corps volunteer in Ecuador. Perhaps because he was in one of the poorest regions in the world, battling hunger, poverty, and ignorance, his memoirs have no middle ground: his experiences are either hilarious or deeply sad.

Living Poor: A Peace Corps Chronicle by Moritz Thomsen

At the age of 48, Moritz Thomsen sold his pig farm and joined the Peace Corps. As he tells the story, his awareness of the comic elements in the human situation—including his own—and his ability to convey it in fast-moving, earthy prose have made Living Poor a classic.

Moritz Thomsen (Ecuador 1965-67) died of cholera in Guayaquil, Ecuador on August 28, 1991. In March 1993 in our newsletter Peace Corps Writers we published an essay entitled "Ashes on the River Esmeraldas" written by Mike Tidwell (Zaire 1985-87).

Mike Tidwell remembers Moritz Thomsen (Ecuador) | Peace ...

Moritz Thomsen rejected wealth and all its values, starting with his very rich father; he chose to live poor, as poverty is the majority human condition. He was true in practice to his beliefs and the result, for us, is truly extraordinary writing. I had never heard of Moritz Thomsen and by chance found "Living Poor."
